Jap Villagers Kneel at Mound They Call Christ's Burial Place

TOKYO—Peasants in a remote northern Japanese village do not celebrate Christmas but they believe Jesus Christ died in Japan.
They are they Christians, but each year they kneel before a strange mound which they believe is Christ's burial place.

This takes place at the village of Hosono where Buddhists or Shintobists gather each year around a mound surrounded by a pillar on which are three Japanese characters and a steeped star composed of interlocking triangles, like the Hebrew symbol.

Now this strange tradition arrived in Japan is not known, but visitors believe that the village, which is located in Amori, near the extreme tip of Honshu island, is no great distance south of Mount Yodanis, which is pronounced almost like the modern Japanese word for "Jesus." The steeped star is completely foreign to the people, yet some people are familiar with the Biblical version of Christ's death. The As-sian story, which they have believed for 20 centuries, is this:

During the reign of the Emperor Shun, the eleventh emperor, a young white man came to live in the district. Twelve years after he died at the age of 34, he disappeared.
His name was Sorataro.

Fifteen years later he returned and told the people he had been to the land of his birth teaching them the way to heaven, and that, because of his beliefs, he had been sentenced to death by crucifixion.

Sorataro is then said to have told

UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL
SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
Lesson for December 10

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 11:20-24 GOLDEN TEXT—Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light. (Matthew 11:28-30)

The response which men and women make to the gospel message is determined by their faith for time and eternity, just as it is determined by their faith for time and eternity.

How do you react to the gospel message? Is the indifference to the faith of a child. The unquestioning dependence, the absolute assurance of the child faith, these are the things that receive an answer from the Almighty.

This is not intended to reflect in any way on those who may have learned wisdom and power but who with all have maintained a childlike humility. God knows them and honors and uses them. The point we want to make is that all too often learning and standing in themselves are a barrier between man and God simply because men put their trust in these things and not in Him. It is always a serious matter when a man permits his God-given ability to think, to come between him and God. What folly it is to expect the infinite and eternal God who made all things, including the brain of man, to in turn pass through the narrow compass of finite thinking.

IV. Restful Companionship (vv.
23-30).
A study of the theories and philosophies of this world leads only to unrest. Bewilderment and unhappiness to the man who puts his trust in them.
But in Christ the weary and be-labeled human soul will find perfect and eternal rest. Why then does the man of men reject Him to go on to wander in despair?

The rest which we find in Christ is not a useless and inactive repose.
Far from it. It is a blessed yoke-fellowship with Christ in carrying forward his work. Here man finds his real usefulness. For only here is he liberated from the limitations of sin and self and joined in a yoke with the One in whom dwells all wisdom and power.

Says:

When fish is to be served as the main dish at a dinner, allow one-half pound for each person.

The reason that we add lemon juice to fish is that its alkaline nature makes the fish more palatable and it is also a good neutralizer to it.

A piece of cheese about the size of a walnut, added to cream soup just before serving, gives it a delicious flavor.

Add lemon juice to peeled potatoes, bananas or other fruits which are to be turned brown before they are mixed into fruit salad.

If geraniums grown in the house begin to look scraggy and weak, nipping off the tops will cause branches to start about the stalks.

House plants do not thrive in a room that is too warm. Keep temperature at 60 or 65 degrees and place plants in a window where they will get sunlight.

Dim your lights when meeting cars at night.
